The Purpose of My Blog

This blog is dedicated to supporting users of copper and bronze clay powder. If you are using these clays, please subscribe to the blog to find answers to your questions, and read about troubleshooting, instructions, and updates.

Please read the files that are linked on the right-hand side of the blog. They include instructions for mixing and firing the clays, programming your kiln, free projects and new information as it becomes available. Whenever the files are updated, I will post a note on the blog. One important file is a checklist that you can look at before you start firing to make sure you did everything right.

By clicking on Gallery at the top of the blog you can see a link to a photo gallery of works of art created by artists using these clays, as well as a photo gallery of my own work.

Please continue asking me questions via email. It will be easier for me to help if you enclose photos and describe the situation in detail. I will answer you personally and address frequently asked questions in the blog.
